Texas A&M University, Department of Communication, Lecturer, Digital Media and Strategic Communication

The Department of Communication at Texas A&M University invites applications for two Lecturers starting in the fall semester of 2019 ending the spring semester of 2020 (9 months, one academic year). Completed M.A. or Ph.D. in communication or related discipline is required. Successful candidates will possess a strong pedagogical background for teaching courses in digital media skills and strategic communication or media studies with the possibility of also teaching upper-level courses in area of expertise. Ability to teach introductory communication courses such as technical and professional communication preferred.

The department offers the PhD, MA, BA and BS degrees, and has 27 tenured/tenure-track faculty members, 15 non-tenure track faculty, more than 45 graduate students, and approximately 1600 undergraduate majors. Further information regarding the department is available at: http://comm.tamu.edu. Texas A&M University is a research-intensive flagship university with more than 64,000 students, including 10,000 graduate students, making it the sixth largest university in the United States. The student body includes 26% African American, Hispanic, Asian or Pacific Islander, and American Indian or Alaskan Native students, as well as approximately 5,000 international students from 130 countries. The Department of Communication embraces the development of a socially and culturally diverse intellectual community and welcomes candidates from diverse backgrounds and groups that are historically underrepresented in our field. Texas A&M University is committed to enriching the learning and working environment for all visitors, students, faculty, and staff by promoting a culture that embraces inclusion, diversity, equity, and accountability. Diverse perspectives, talents, and identities are vital to accomplishing our mission and living our core values.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue to be accepted until the position is filled. Interested candidates should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness or supervision and mentorship, and names and contact information for three references to: J. Kevin Barge (comm@tamu.edu), Please use subject line: Lecturer-COMM Social Media, Department of Communication, 4234 TAMU, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843-4234. We request that the cover letter should address the applicant’s fit with the position and offer evidence of a demonstrated commitment in the areas of diversity and inclusion as it applies to their teaching or supervision and mentorship.

Applicants are subject to a criminal history investigation, and employment is contingent upon the institution’s verification of credentials and/or other information required by the institution’s procedures, including the completion of the criminal history check.

The Texas A&M University System is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action/Veterans/ Disability Employer committed to diversity.